

Archaeology Object Hunt

You will work in your group to answer the following questions. You will need to use your archaeologist skills and techniques we have talked about in class

1. What do you think your artifact is?

2. What society/civilization is this artifact from?

3. What archaeological techniques have you used to come up with these answers?

4. How would your artifact have been used?

5. Write 2-4 sentences describing the historical importance of this artifact (what could historians/archaeologists learn from understanding this artifact's purpose):

Archaeology Object Hunt

You will work in your group to try to come up with what your artifact is to answer the following questions. You will need to use your archaeologist skills and techniques we have talked about in class

1. What do you think your artifact is?

2. What society/civilization is this artifact from?

3. What archaeological techniques have you used to come up with these answers?

4. How would your artifact have been used?

5. Write 2-4 sentences describing the historical importance of this artifact (what could historians/archaeologists learn from understanding this artifact's purpose):

Archaeology Object Hunt

You will work in your group to try to come up with what your artifact is to answer the following questions. You will need to use your archaeologist skills and techniques we have talked about in class

1. What do you think your artifact is?

2. What society/civilization is this artifact from?

3. What archaeological techniques have you used to come up with these answers?

4. How would your artifact have been used?

5. Write 2-4 sentences describing the historical importance of this artifact (what could historians/archaeologists learn from understanding this artifact's purpose):